The instructor tries his best to make the class interactive by showing many videos, articles, pictures etc. But because of some of the particular students, most of us don't get the chance to participate in the class. Has the instructor been effective? The professor has an amazing knowledge of the topics he is discussing in the class. Furthermore, the class is not just boring lectures. Thus, it has been effective to me.

How can the instructor improve this course? I believe incorporating more present relation of the cultures, and states and everything with the history of the objects would be a great help. For instance, when we cover an object about Egypt's civilization, if we know about the current Egypt culture and civilization through the lectures it will give us a much broader view.

How does this instructor compares with your other instructors? I would comment one of the best. Great knowledge of the materials, well-organized, punctual, and serious about the class.
